

Post-doc position in BioMINE project

Requirements:

We are looking for a Postdoc for a new project BioMINE in which we aim at digging deep into a reactor microbiome to discover new functions for converting waste into chemicals.

It is expected that the candidate will have:

- Documented experience of working in the biotechnological lab and in the research projects;
- Early carrier track of records (international peer review publications, conference presentations etc.);
- Experience in microbiology, microbial ecology, molecular biology methods and in bioinformatics and handling metagenomics data (experience in fluxome analysis will be highly encouraged)
- PhD (not later than 7 years ago) in one of the following: environmental engineering, environmental biotechnology, industrial biotechnology, biochemistry, microbiology or similar
- It is not necessary but it would be advantageous: experience in scripting or coding;
- Ability to work in a research team and to learn new techniques and adjust them to the research needs
- Proficiency in English in writing and speaking

Tasks description:

A Postdoc will be responsible for co-supervising PhD student in setting up experimental plan. Besides he/she will be responsible for the omics and bioinformatics side of the project. The primary work will be associated with development of new protocols for microbiome functionality analysis, identifying and isolation of selected microbes and building a fluxome for better understanding of mixed culture fermentation technologies.
